School of Economics and Management

MSc

Financial Economics

The School of Economics and Management of the University of Cyprus offers an MSc in Financial Economics. The programme combines a rigorous academic core of courses with tailored practical applications, providing an in-depth understanding of financial economic tools sought by financial institutions, companies and public organizations. It is staffed by a unique combination of academics and practitioners with ground experience.

The programme provides an excellent preparation for a career in the finance, banking or insurance sectors. It also prepares students to pursue a PhD in finance or economics.

The programme is available both full and part time and is taught in English.

Knowledge to shape the future

Cyprus, a European country located at the crossroads of the ancient world in the Eastern Mediterranean, offers a unique and diverse cultural and educational experience.

The high quality education and infrastructure facilities of the University of Cyprus match the best in Europe and the US. The School of Economics and Management ranks in the top European Universities in research in finance and economics. It is housed in a new building which brings together students and academics in an attractive, modern space, providing sophisticated facilities for teaching, learning and research.

The costs are moderate and financial assistantships are available based on merit.
