

Beginning of the second phase of the research programme 'Sharing without Solidarity: Politics, Heritage and Pilgrimage in a Divided European Society' (MSCA, IF)

The Department of Social and Political Sciences announces the beginning of the second phase of the research programme 'Sharing without Solidarity: Politics, Heritage and Pilgrimage in a Divided European Society' of Dr. Evgenia Mesaritou, postdoctoral researcher at the Department. The programme began on September 01, 2017 and will be completed on August 31st, 2020 and it is conducted under the supervision of Professors Simon Coleman (Department for the Study of Religion, University of Toronto, Canada) and Yiannis Papadakis (Department of Social and Political Sciences, University of Cyprus). The project has received funding from the European Union's Horizon 2020 research and innovation programme under the Marie Skłodowska-Curie grant agreement No 752103. The project examines how religion, politics and cultural heritage intersect in a divided society through the examination of the restoration of the monastery of Apostolos Andreas (Karpasia, Cyprus) and the revival of pilgrimages to it. Data is collected through qualitative research methods; interviews, participant observation, archival and visual research. The project's first phase (September 01, 2017- August 31, 2019) has been conducted at the Department for the Study of Religion, University of Toronto. For more information visit the project's website: <https://www.tamaproject.info>.

This project has received funding from the European Union's Horizon 2020 research and innovation programme under the Marie Skłodowska-Curie grant agreement No 752103