

Πανεπιστήμιο Κύπρου
Τμήμα Κοινωνικών και
Πολιτικών Επιστημών

Antonis Ellinas (UCY/SSP) and Johanna Hanink (Brown University) talk about the Journal of Modern Greek Studies

Antonis Ellinas, Associate Professor at the University of Cyprus, and Johanna Hanink, Associate Professor at Brown University, talk to the Johns Hopkins University Press for their new duties as editors of the Journal of Modern Greek Studies. They discuss the long and wonderful trajectory of the Journal, published by JHUP since 1983. They analyze the importance of the Journal's interdisciplinary approach; explicate the aims of the new editorial team; and talk about the content of forthcoming issues.

The editorial team includes Olga Demetriou, Associate Professor at Durham University, who was adjunct teaching staff at the Department of Social and Political Sciences.

You can find the podcast here:

<https://player.fm/series/jhu-press-journals-podcasts/johanna-hanink-and-antonis-ellinas-journal-of-modern-greek-studies>