

ANASTASIA PECHLIVANIDES
ARCHITECT - CITY PLANNER
Em. PROFESSOR, SCHOOL OF ARCHITECTURE, N.T.U.A.
(NATIONAL TECHNICAL UNIVERSITY, ATHENS GREECE)

Graduate Architect-Engineer, School of Architecture NTUA, 1969. Master of Arts in Architecture & Urban Planning, University of California, Los Angeles (U.C.L.A.) 1980. Major of studies: Architecture - Urban Design – Design Methods. Major area in teaching: Architectural composition - Urban Design – Computer Aided Design and Perception of Space.

Professor, School of Architecture NTUA until 2010. Emeritus Professor since 2012. In the graduate program she taught architectural composition, rehabilitation of buildings and urban environments, digital applications in conceptualizing and representing architectural space. From 1998 to 2010 director of the “Digital Simulation Lab” of the School of Architecture NTUA. In the interdisciplinary post-graduate program she created a course and developed research on the Perception of Space through Static and Dynamic Digital Representations.

Anastasia Pechlivanides has lectured and participated in conferences and exhibitions in Greece Europe and abroad.

As collaborating architects Ioannis Liakatas and Anastasia Pechlivanides have participated in many pan-hellenic and international Architectural Competitions winning 30 prizes and distinctions. Their architectural firm is experienced, among others, in cultural buildings as civic centers, theaters, conference centers, museums and exhibition spaces.