

Filippos Oraipoulos is an architect theoretician and historian who also Studied Mathematic Logic, Philosophy of Knowledge, neo-Hellenic culture in Paris, with a PhD on theory of Architecture Sorbonne, Paris I), Emeritus professor of architecture (Volos School of Architecture, University of Thessaly, Greece), was founder and director of Laboratory of History - Theory and Conceptual Design, co-curator for the Greek Pavilion, Venice Biennale 2004, co-founder of Built Event, spatial practices for architecture, art, curating and urbanism, presented in Barcelona Landscape Biennale 2006, Sao Paulo Biennale of Architecture 2007, Galleria Contemporaneo, Mestre, Italy, 2008, Thessaloniki Biennale of Art 2009, Gyumri Biennale of Art 2010. Visiting professor of Parson university (2013 New School in N.Y.), Visiting Fellow in the University of Princeton (2008), he also lectured in Architectural Association (AA London), University of Princeton, School of Visual Art in N.Y. He published 1 book in French and 2 books in Greek, many articles in the architectural press, and various projects for architecture and arts. The last fifteen years occupied with the neoPoetical theory and practice in architecture and art and the last years he is co-founder of Informal Studio of neo-Poetics for research and practice in architecture of the city and art.