THE JAMES G. MARCH PRIZE AWARDED TO AN ACADEMIC AT THE SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS AND MANAGEMENT, UNIVERSITY OF CYPRUS

The James G. March Prize was awarded to Professors Haridimos Tsoukas and Jörgen Sandberg during the 36th EGOS Colloquium 2020

The James G. March Prize was awarded on Wednesday, July 1st 2020, to Professors Haridimos Tsoukas (Department of Business and Public Administration of the University of Cyprus) and Jörgen Sandberg (Business School of the University of Queensland), at the 36th European Group of Organization Studies (EGOS) Colloquium, held in Hamburg, Germany, for their recent paper entitled “Sensemaking reconsidered: Towards a broader understanding through phenomenology”.

Their paper published in Organization Theory develops a typology of sensemaking in organizations that reconsiders existing sensemaking research by providing a more coherent and integrative conceptualization of what defines sensemaking and how it is connected with organizing.

The James G. March Prize is awarded bi-annually for the best article published in the journal Organization Theory. It pays tribute to the scholarship and legacy of Jim March who has been a great inspiration to many within the EGOS community. The winning paper reflects the diversity of social science perspectives as they relate to organizations, organizing, and the organized. It offers a clear theoretical contribution to the scholarly debate, demonstrating impact, significance, critique, and novelty. On July 1st 2020, the James G. March Prize was awarded for the very first time at the 36th EGOS Colloquium 2020.

The School of Economics and Management of the University of Cyprus, would like to congratulate Professors Haridimos Tsoukas and Jörgen Sandberg on this achievement and wish them continued success.
